Here's Aid For You, Doctor, In Curing Digestive Troubles

You have long wanted a simple non-drug help to your treatment which the patient can take on his own responsibility.

For this nothing has proven so efficient as cultured milk, but to obtain a cultured milk containing the Bulgarian bacillus in such vigorously effective form as to reach the lower intestine has been next to impossible.

As a result of over 1800 laboratory tests made by me during an exhaustive study of the subject in France and Switzerland, I have produced a perfected milk of which thousands of bottles are sold daily in Geneva and Zurich under doctors' recommendations. This new preparation is

GLYCO-PEPTO THE SWISS MILK

Its greatly increased efficiency over old style cultures is due to my successful combination of bacillus Bulgarius with Glycobacter Peptolyticus, which insures definite activity in the lower bowel, the seat of auto-intoxication. This perfection is attained without an overproduction of lactic acid.

Glyco-Pepto Milk is a most nourishing food, agreeable to the most delicate stomach and a gentle and positive help in all digestive troubles. It is a delicious drink for all who suffer from digestive disorders and most valuable for the under-nourished and for convalescents.

The profession in New York is rapidly becoming acquainted with its great merit and my best customers today are physicians.

Glyco-Pepto Milk is made fresh daily under my personal supervision. It is sold in clear glass bottles at drug stores and soda fountains. Two or three bottles each day soon prove its worth. If you are unable to obtain Glyco-Pepto Milk conveniently, write or telephone and I will see you are supplied at your own home or office.

MARSHALL ATTACKS BONUS AS DEBASING

Former Vice-President Asserts
He Would Not Offer Patriotism for Sale.

HIS VIEWS HAVE EFFECT

Democratic Senators Are Impressed by Them—Raid Victims Tabulated.

Special Dispatch to The New York Herald.
Washington, D. C., July 31.—The Democratic Senators—even those in favor of a bonus for ex-service men—were much impressed to-day by a statement just made by former Vice-President Thomas R. Marshall in which he expressed opposition to the proposed $5,000,000,000 raid.

The views of Mr. Marshall on the pending McCumber bill may be a deciding factor in the fate of that measure, which is growing more unpopular every day in the Senate. His opinion is similar to that of Senators Borah (Idaho), Williams (Miss.), Underwood (Ala.) and other who discuss the subject on its merits and cast aside the political aspects of the question.

"If I were one of the fellows who had the glorious record of service to my country," said Mr. Marshall, "if I did not need the bonus I would not take it. I would not put my patriotism up on the counter for sale. I would rather let the record of sacrifice for the nation stand—an unjust sacrifice, in my opinion, when compared with the sacrifice of those who stayed at home—but still I would rather let it stand than take a bonus."

The former Vice-President also took a left hand fling at the bonus issue when he stated that as a result of agitation the Federal Government is practically "tipping every community in the country." Mr. Marshall has just returned from an extended trip to Europe and stopped over in Washington to confer with some of his close friends in official life before going to his home in Indiana.

Fate of Raid Advocates.
To disillusion those Senators who have been influenced to support the bonus bill, believing it would add to their chances of reelection, opponents of the bill have compiled an interesting table showing the fate of some members of Congress most active in the support of the proposed raid.

The tabulation shows that these members of the present House who supported the McCumber bonus bill have been defeated for reelection: Copely and Ireland, both of Illinois; Foeltz, Rose, McLaughlin, Walters, Crago, Connell, Reber, Jones, Brooks, all of Pennsylvania, and Dunbar of Indiana.

The vast majority of the primary contests for House seats are yet to be held, and reports reaching the capital are that because of their support of the bonus many more members of the present body will be rejected by the electorate. In Maryland, for instance, where the anti-bonus sentiment is very strong, indications are that at least four of the six members of the House will not be returned because they voted for the bonus.

On the other hand, those Representatives, notably McArthur (Ore.) and Sears (Fla.), who made their campaign largely in opposition to the bonus raid, have been renominated by increased majorities.

In the Senate there are several victims of the bonus raid, including Senator McCumber (N. D.), its sponsor.

Liability Instead of Asset.
So convincing has been the evidence that support of the bonus bill has proved to be a political liability rather than an asset that Senators no longer have any doubt on the subject. When the question was first agitated Senator Watson (Ind.) and other supporters made no secret of the fact that the legislation was conceived and was justified only as a political expediency. For that reason the sponsors were inclined to give heed to the requests, if not demands, of the politicians of the American Legion.

At first the legion, listing its hold on the politicians in the Senate, demanded a cash bonus and nothing short of that. However, as the sordid scheme was exposed and the general public began to voice its protest, there were gradual modifications of the demand so that eventually the cash option was abandoned completely.

Now there is a growing demand in the Senate to throw the whole bill into the discard. That program would probably be adopted were it not for the conviction that the President will veto the McCumber bill, thus preventing a raid on the Treasury.

MISSOURI PRIMARY TO TEST WILSONISM

Reed-Long Battle Makes That Dominant Issue.

Special Dispatch to The New York Herald.
St. Louis, July 31.—The primary campaign in Missouri is over. The evidence is in, the rebuttals have been submitted and the final arguments made. The fate of the various candidates now rests with the jury—the people of Missouri. And the verdict will be returned to-morrow.

On the eve of the primary election, as was the case throughout the campaign, the race between Senator James A. Reed and Brookridge Long for the Democratic nomination for United States Senator easily eclipses in interest all other primary contests. This is due to the fact that the Reed-Long fight transcends in significance State and even national issues because of the injection of Wilsonism into the campaign. In fact, Reed's differences with Wilson and the Wilson Administration, coupled with Long's professed unflinching allegiance to the Wilson banner, have made Wilsonism virtually the sole issue of the campaign.

Long to a great extent eschewed State issues during his speaking campaign and practically ignored the wet and dry issue, contenting himself with an analysis of the accomplishments of the Wilson Administration and an indictment of Republican leaders for "defeating the constructive war time and post war time measures of the Wilson Administration."

DEER SEEK HAVEN ON FARM.

Six Animals Seem to Recognize Game Protector.

Game authorities in Dutchess county yesterday reported a herd of deer, hounded by dogs, had just sought refuge on the Victor Briggs farm near Rhinebeck. Owners will be warned not to let dogs hunt the two deer and their four fawns.

As if they realized who their friends were, the deer emerged from a cornfield, hopped over a fence and stood watching Game Protector Philbrick as he passed in his automobile. They are thought to have escaped from one of the country estates at Rhinebeck, where Vincent Astor and others have show places.

MANY ISSUES MARK WESTERN CAMPAIGN

Newberry Case, Bonus, Labor
Problems and Prohibition Are Among Them.

CHICAGO, July 31 (Associated Press).—Prohibition enforcement, soldiers' compensation, labor questions and the Non-Partisan League are among the issues involved in State and Congressional campaigns in central Western States. Senatorial records in connection with the seating of Senator Truman H. Newberry of Michigan are being assailed in some States.

In Iowa, the home of one of its authors, as well as in Wisconsin, the Esch-Cummins railroad law has been attacked, while the Kansas Industrial Court is a point of controversy in Kansas. Proposed use of the State troops in connection with the shopmen's strike and the attitude of candidates toward the Ku Klux Klan are at issue in Texas. Vindication or repudiation of the political records of Senator La Follette of Wisconsin and Senator Reed of Missouri are the crucial questions in their respective States, and are related by the fact that one charge against Senator Reed is that the Senator in 1920 violated party regularity by going to Wisconsin to support a La Follette independent. Women are candidates for high offices in several States. A summary of issues by States follows:

Iowa.
A clash between Col. Smith W. Brookhart, Republican nominee for the United States Senate, and conservative Republican is forecast at the State Republican convention August 2 unless party leaders reach an understanding with him or unless a platform of generalities is drafted. Col. Brookhart favors repeal of the Esch-Cummins bill. In the primaries Col. Brookhart did not have the support of many of the party regulars, and some Republican leaders declared he was too radical. He was nominated over a field of six candidates by 41.1 per cent. of the total vote. The Democratic candidate for the Senate is Clyde L. Herring, Des Moines business man.

Michigan.
Senator Charles E. Townsend of Jackson, who supported Truman H. Newberry in the latter's fight for a seat in the United States Senate, is seeking renomination by the Republicans in a contest with Representative Patrick H. Kelley of Lansing and Major John G. Emery of Grand Rapids, who are assailing his record in the Newberry case. Gov. Alex. J. Groesbeck, who is seeking Republican renomination, is charged by persons of differing political faith with "extravagance and high handed methods."

Minnesota.
Mrs. Anna D. Olson, Democratic nominee for the United States Senate, is attacking the record of her opponent, Senator Frank B. Kellogg, in voting to seat Senator Newberry. The Farmer-Labor party, which includes adherents to the Non-Partisan League, is backing Senator Henrik Shipstead of Minneapolis. Representative Volstead, renominated by the Republicans, will probably face again Gov. J. O. Kvale of Benson, also an avowed dry. This year Kvale has the endorsement of both Democrats and Farmer-Laborites and is expected to file as an independent.

Indiana.
The Democrats have pledged "home rule in tax levies," that is, the amendment of the State tax law to place authority for making certain levies with local taxing units. They accuse the Republican State administration of mismanagement in the handling of State funds, the abuse of the depository law and the misapplication of the State board of accounts law. The Republicans assert that the administration is the most economical in years. The thirteen Democratic candidates for Congress include a woman, Miss Esther Kathleen O'Keefe, in the Thirteenth district.

Oklahoma.
Mayor J. C. Walton of Oklahoma City is a candidate for the Democratic nomination for Governor on a platform adopted by the Farmer-Labor Reconstruction League and assailed by opposing groups as Non-Partisan League doctrine. All of the eight Oklahomaans in Congress are seeking renomination, and seven of them face contests, particularly Manuel Herrick of Perry and Miss Robertson of Muskogee, Republicans representing the Eighth and Second districts.

Kansas.
The Kansas Industrial Court is under fire from the State Federation of Labor through its political subsidiary, the League of Non-Partisan Voters. Two of the seven Republican candidates for Governor and all three Democratic candidates advocate the overthrow of the Industrial Court, but its friends predict that it will survive.

Illinois.
The State Legislature has put the bonus issue before the people in the form of a proposition calling for authority to issue $55,000,000 in State bonds to pay the soldiers' and sailors' bonus of fifty cents a day. Delay in action on the Federal bonus bill has made the State proposal something of a political issue. The wet and dry issue is causing speculation in the Sixteenth District, which includes Peoria, a former whisky center. In this district W. E. Hull won the nomination for Congress in the Republican primaries. He is said to be a wet, although he did not make prohibition an issue during his primary campaign. The Democratic opponent is Jesse Black of Pekin.

Wisconsin.
Senator Robert M. La Follette is a candidate for reelection. His war record and his attitude toward national questions are under attack by a group known as Independent Liberal Republicans, who have nominated Dr. W. A. Ganfield, president of Carroll College, to oppose him. Standing with La Follette is an entire State ticket headed by Gov. J. J. Blaine.

North Dakota.
Uncertainty surrounds the alignment of the Federal and State campaigns, but with a strong probability that the campaign will constitute a smashing battle between the Non-Partisan League and the Independent Voters Association. Some assert that North Dakota has become a State without parties.

South Dakota.
Democrats, Republicans and the Non-Partisan League have full State tickets in the field, the League having nominated Miss Alice Lorraine Daly for Governor. The League proposes a State bank like that of North Dakota and favors State ownership of various industrial institutions. The Democrats are making an unusually vigorous campaign under the leadership of L. N. Crill, candidate for Governor, who is basing his plea for election on a plan for economy through consolidation and coordination of State offices.

Nebraska.
Discontent with the old parties took expression here several months ago in the formation of a Progressive party, which will oppose the Democrats and the Republicans in the fall campaign. R. B. Howell of Omaha, Republican national committeeman, was nominated for United States Senator after making his campaign as "forward looking Republican" and a supporter of what he termed progressive policies. Senator Gilbert M. Hitchcock, a Democratic leader in the Senate during the Wilson Administration, was renominated by the Democrats.

Texas.
The Ku Klux Klan is an issue in both Senatorial and gubernatorial contests for the Democratic nomination. Of six candidates for the Senate, one, R. L.

Henry, says he believes in the Klan, two are considered unfriendly, and two are noncommittal. Mr. Henry has asserted that one of the noncommittal candidates is a Klansman. Gov. Neff, who is a candidate for renomination, is opposed by Harry T. Warner, a newspaper man of Paris, Tex.

Kentucky.
Proposed amendments to permit the sale of beer and wines, though urged here, have failed to find any candidates willing to make them part of their platforms.

Re-orders 2,000 a Day

The demand for Edith Wharton's new novel, "The Glimpses of the Moon," is so great that the re-orders from booksellers are pouring in at the rate of over 2,000 copies a day. And this in the face of an advance sale which exhausted two huge editions and nearly consumed a third. Several presses, running constantly for the past month, have been speeded up in an effort to meet the demand.

The New York Times' critic sums up the reason in a front page feature review:

"I can think of no American novel, written within the last few years, and dealing with contemporary American life, to compare with it. And not only does Mrs. Wharton write better than any one else, but she knows how to unfold a more exciting tale."
